Stocks Fall Amid Global Worries

Dow plummets 419 points in a return to last week's wild ride

New York

Just when Wall Street seemed to have settled down, a barrage of bad economic reports collided with fresh worries about European banks Thursday and triggered a global sell-off in stocks.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 419 points — a return to the wild swings that gripped the stock market last week.

Stocks were only part of a dramatic day across the financial markets. The price of oil fell $5, gold set another record, the 10-year Treasury hit its lowest yield, and the average mortgage rate fell to its lowest in at least 40 years.

The selling began in Asia, where Japanese exports fell for a fifth-straight month, and continued in Europe, where bank stocks were hammered because of worries about debt problems there, which have proved hard to contain.

On Wall Street, the losses wiped

Wall Street has wrestled for weeks with fears that a new recession could happen.

Backlash Against S&P Brews

A day after it was reported that the Justice Department was investigating whether the Standard & Poor's credit ratings agency improperly rated dozens of mortgage securities in the years leading up to the financial crisis, the city of Los Angeles announced it will no longer hire the S&P to rate its $7 billion general investment pool. The rating agency recently downgraded the city's portfolio from AAA, to AA and interim Treasurer Steve Ongele says the city has lost faith in S&P's judgment. He added the market crash occurred because rating agencies like S&P gave unworthy corporations AAA ratings. (AP)

Economic Woes

Some investors who bought in the middle of last week decided to sell Thursday after they were confronted with a raft of bad news.

- ▶ More people joined the unemployment line last week than at any time in the past month.
- ▶ Inflation at the consumer level in July was the highest since March.
- ▶ Sales of homes fell in July for the third time in four months.
- ▶ Manufacturing has sharply weakened in the mid-Atlantic states.

out much of the roughly 700 points that the Dow had gained over five days. Wall Street and other financial markets have wrestled for several weeks with fears that a new recession might be in the offing. Morgan Stanley economists reported Thursday that the U.S. and Europe are "dangerously close to recession."

The Dow fell 419.63 points, or 3.7 percent, to 10,990.58. The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 53.24, or 4.5 percent, to 1,140.65. The Nasdaq composite fell 131.05, or 5.2 percent, to 2,380.43. (AP)

IBM's Chips Mimic Brain

Tech company touts 2 prototypes that can behave like humans

San Francisco

Computers, like humans, can learn. But when Google tries to fill in your search box based only on a few key-strokes, or your iPhone predicts words as you type a text message, it's only a narrow mimicry of what the human brain is capable.

The challenge in training a computer to behave like a human brain is technological and physiological, testing the limits of computers and brain science. But researchers from IBM Corp. say they've taken a key step toward combining the two worlds.

The company announced Thursday that it has built two prototype chips that it says process data more like how humans digest informa-

Cognitive Computing

Technologists have long imagined computers that learn like humans.

Your iPhone or Google's servers can be programmed to predict certain behavior based on past events. But the techniques being explored by IBM and other companies and university research labs around "cognitive computing" could lead to chips that are better able to adapt to unexpected information. IBM's interest in the chips lies in their ability to potentially help process real-world signals such as temperature, sound or motion and make sense of them for computers. (AP) tion than the chips that now power PCs and supercomputers.

The uses of the IBM chips so far are prosaic, such as steering a simulated car through a maze, or playing Pong. It may be a decade or longer before the chips make their way out of the lab and into actual products.

The chips' ability to adapt to types of information that it wasn't specifically programmed to expect is a key feature.

Dharmendra Modha, project leader for IBM Research, said the new chips have parts that behave like digital "neurons" and "synapses" that make them different than other chips. Each "core," or processing engine, has computing, communication and memory functions.

A computer with the power of the human brain is not yet near. But Modha said the latest development is an important step. "It really changes the perspective from 'What if?' to 'What now?'" Modha said. "Today we proved it was possible." JORDAN ROBERTSON (AP)

U.S., Allies Press Assad to Resign

International efforts signal patience with Syria is at an end

Washington

Executing a global squeeze play, the United States and its European allies on Thursday demanded an end to four decades of brutal family dictatorship in Syria and underscored the tough talk with new sanctions on President Bashar Assad's government.

The new efforts signal the end of the world's thin patience for Assad, once viewed as a Western-looking pragmatist who might expand freedoms at home and help achieve an Arab peace deal with Israel.

The messages coincided with

Authorized to Act

President Obama on Thursday signed an executive order that gives his administration authority to impose new sanctions on Syria intended to further isolate President Bashar Assad. a U.N. report recommending that Syria be referred to the International Criminal Court for investigation of possible crimes against humanity.

In Thursday's coordinated statements, President Obama and the leaders of Britain, France, Germany, Canada and the European Union called for Assad to resign, saying his repression of protests inspired by this spring's Arab uprisings made him unfit to lead.

"We have consistently said that President Assad must lead a democratic transition or get out of the way. He has not led," Obama said in a statement. "For the sake of the Syrian people, the time has come for President Assad to step aside."

Rights groups say Assad's forces have killed nearly 2,000 people since mid-March. The military assault on civilians has escalated since Ramadan began, with security forces killing hundreds and detaining thousands.

The resignation calls were the first explicit demands from the U.S. and its allies for Assad to step down, though condemnation of his actions had been growing. (AP)

Libyan Rebels Close In On Gadhafi's Stronghold

Zawiya, Libya

Rebels in Libya seized the country's last functioning oil refinery Thursday and claimed to have captured most of the nearby city of Zawiya, 30 miles west of the capital along the Mediterranean coast.

A rebel victory in Zawiya could leave Moammar Gadhafi nearly cornered in his stronghold of Tripoli. Rebel fighters are closing in on the capital from the west and the south, while NATO controls the seas to the north. The opposition is in charge of most of the eastern half of the country.

The Libyan leader has given no indication he is willing to relinquish power, though there are signs that his 42-year-old rule may be unraveling.

Libya's civil war erupted after anti-regime protests spread across the country in February. The rebel advance then stalled until earlier this month, when opposition fighters pushed from the Nafusa mountains into the Gadhafi-held coastal area. Saturday's entry by rebels into Zawiya, marked the most dramatic gain yet of the new offensive.

Meanwhile, Gadhafi's prime minister, al-Baghdadi Ali al-Mahmoudi, said the government was in negotiations with the rebels. "We are also calling on all sides for a cease-fire," al-Mahmoudi said.

Gadhafi's government has previously called for a cease-fire but continued to shell towns where rebels tried to take power. Rebel leaders have said they will not negotiate until Gadhafi steps down. (AP)

Attacks in Israel Up Sinai Tensions

Officials: Militants from Gaza entered via Egyptian border

Jerusalem

Gunmen who crossed from the Egyptian desert launched a series of attacks Thursday in southern Israel, killing eight people and threatening to destabilize a volatile border region that includes the Hamas-ruled Gaza Strip and the increasingly lawless Sinai Peninsula.

Israel blamed an armed Palestinian group from neighboring Gaza. Israeli forces killed five of the gunmen along the border with Egypt, the military said, and launched an airstrike inside Gaza that killed five militants from the same group and a child.

They suggested that Egypt's recent political upheaval and a resulting power vacuum in Sinai had allowed militants to open a

Backstory

In November, Israel began erecting a fence along its 150-mile border with Egypt, in part to keep out Islamic militants operating in Sinai. new front against Israel.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Israel would not put up with such attacks. "If the terror organizations think they can strike at our civilians without eliciting a response, then they will find that Israel will exact a price — a very heavy price," he said.

Egypt and Hamas denied involvement in the assault, the deadliest against Israelis since a gunman killed eight civilians in Jerusalem in 2008. (AP)

Basketbrawl in Beijing

Benches clear in what was supposed to be a goodwill trip for Georgetown

Beijing

What began as a goodwill trip to China for the Georgetown men's basketball team turned violent Thursday night, when its exhibition game against Chinese professional club the Bayi Rockets deteriorated into a benches-clearing melee in which players exchanged blows, chairs were thrown, and spectators tossed full water bottles at the Hoyas players and coaches as they headed to the locker room.

Georgetown coach John Thompson III pulled his players off the Olympic Sports Center Stadium court with 9 minutes, 32 seconds left in the game and the scored tied at 64 after a chaotic scene in which members of both the Georgetown and Bayi Rockets teams began swinging wildly and tackling one another.

“My only thought was to get our fans, our players, our family, our friends out of this building as soon as possible.”

— GEORGETOWN BASKETBALL COACH JOHN THOMPSON III

There were an estimated half-dozen individual altercations on the court, and eventually some Chinese onlookers joined the fracas, including one wielding a stanchion. As the brawl spilled beyond the baseline, an unidentified Bayi player pushed Georgetown's Aaron Bowen through a partition to the ground before repeatedly punching the sophomore guard while sitting on his chest. Georgetown senior center Henry Sims had a chair tossed at him by an unidentified person, and Georgetown fresh-

Fighting Mad

One of the most surreal sequences unfolded early in the third quarter, when Rockets forward Xu Zhonghao approached Hoyas coach John Thompson III while he was standing near the Georgetown bench and began yelling at him at close range during the course of play. Thompson stared at Xu in disbelief before officials halted play for several minutes. Moments later, Bayi player Wang Lei was called for a technical foul after vehemently disputing a call. (TWP)

man forward Moses Ayegba, who was wearing a brace on his right leg, limped onto the court with a chair in his right hand. According to Georgetown officials, Ayegba had been struck, prompting him to grab a chair in self-defense.

The brawl occurred one night after Vice President Joe Biden, who is in Beijing on a four-day visit, attended a Georgetown game against another Chinese club. That game, which Georgetown won, passed without incident.

A State Department official called the melee “unfortunate.” “We look to these types of exchanges to promote good sportsmanship and strengthen our people-to-people contact with China,” said the official. A Chinese Embassy spokesman in Washington said he had not heard of the incident.

The official China news agency Xinhua did not have an immediate account of the game, and while other prominent Chinese websites such as

Diplomatic Friction

Thursday's bench-clearing brawl marred the orchestrated harmony of Vice President Joe Biden's visit to China. On his first visit there as vice president, Biden seemed to click with Xi Jinping — the country's leader-in-waiting — while stressing the need for better ties between the two countries during talks in Beijing on Thursday. However, some friction arose as reporters covering Biden's visit were told to leave the room when the vice president was still speaking. White House press handlers believed they had an agreement that reporters would be permitted to remain in the room until Biden had completed his opening remarks. (AP) 163.com and Sina.com posted stories, government censors shortly thereafter took them down.

It was unclear whether the brawl would affect similar ventures in the future. The Georgetown delegation — which included university President John DeGioia, other school officials and prominent alumni and boosters — was scheduled to fly to Shanghai on Friday.

The fracas that ended the contest marked the second time both benches emptied in a rugged game marred by fouls, an inordinate number of which went against the Hoyas. By halftime, Bayi had 11 fouls, and Georgetown had 28.

“The situations we were put in went beyond losing your cool,” Thompson said afterward. “It went to, ‘I need to protect myself.’ That got to a level above and beyond competition and competing.”

The first half of the journey went completely according to plan: MARC Train to Union Station, Metro to L'Enfant Plaza, Metrobus to Dulles Airport. That's a long haul, but with my iPad, it was like being at the office. I sent off a slew of work emails, caught up on some blogs and planned my brother's weekend visit.

I was still feeling pleased with myself when, as Google promised, the Dulles 2 Dulles Connector pulled up. For 50 cents, this mini-shuttle was supposed to whisk me to the Dulles 28 Centre, a shopping strip with a Wegmans and other suburban delights. And from there, it would be a 1.7-mile walk to my final destination.

As the bus arrived at my stop, I realized the walk part of this plan might be a problem. I managed to make it down Pacific Boulevard all right — there wasn't a sidewalk, but the grassy strip to the side of the shopping center was plenty wide. At the turn onto VA-625W, however, I began to freak out. I started along the side of the road, hoping I'd soon spy a friendly cement strip that'd protect me from the many cars speeding by. Instead, I saw that the map wanted me to dash across three lanes of traffic.

So I did something extreme. I went back to Wegmans and called a cab. (And, miraculously, I managed to make my appointment.)

You might think that would have taught me my lesson. But on my ride home — after getting a lift to the Vienna Metro station — I realized that I could have walked north to the Washington & Old Dominion Trail to get across Route 28, which would have made the trek longer but totally doable. Maybe next time.

Roadblocked

You know how there's couponing and then there's extreme couponing? Well, I've always prided myself on being not just a transit user, but an extreme transit user. In situations in which any sane person would just call a taxi or rent a car, I stubbornly look for some random bus that will get me close enough so my legs can carry me the rest of the way.

In 10 years of reporting around the D.C. area — and often way out into the burbs — this strategy never failed me. Until last week.

I needed to get to a location in Sterling, Va., which isn't particularly close to our downtown D.C. office and is even farther from my home in Baltimore. So I wasn't too surprised when I punched my destination into Metro's Trip Planner and got the familiar response of "Unable to return an itinerary."

That's what Metro always says when there's no service within a mile of your destination. But I am perfectly capable of walking more than a mile, so I was pleased to see that Google Maps (which now offers local transit directions) had a plan for me. It would take four hours and 20 minutes, but if I left early enough, I'd get to my appointment on time. Sold.

Pony Up, Please: Washington's airports authority wants more money from federal and state governments to build the second phase of the Metro rail line to Dulles International Airport. The board of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, which is overseeing construction of the extension to Dulles and Loudoun County, said Wednesday it wants Virginia to contribute $500 million and the federal government to provide loans of $700 million to $1.2 billion. ## In Brief

WASHINGTON

Audit: $1M Improperly Given to Peaceholics

Moten

The District of Columbia auditor says then-Mayor Adrian M. Fenty's administration improperly awarded more than $1 million in no-bid grants to a local violence-prevention group. The report from Auditor Yolanda Branche says the nonprofit group Peaceholics was poorly equipped to manage city money it received from 2006 to 2010, according to The Washington Post. Ronald Moten, a co-founder of Peaceholics, says the group has learned from its mistakes and will get additional training. (AP)

OCEAN CITY, MD.

Suspected Counterfeit Dealers Raided by Police

Law enforcement officers have raided two dozen Ocean City businesses suspected of trafficking in counterfeit goods. U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement officials conducted the raids on Wednesday, with help from the FBI and state and local police. A lawsuit filed last summer in federal court in Baltimore by luxury handbag maker Coach Inc. says that an investigator for the company entered 13 stores in the city in June and bought counterfeit bags, wallets and other items for prices ranging from $20 to $75. (AP)

ARLINGTON

Rally for 9/11 Victims May Slow Traffic on I-66

A motorcycle rally expected to roll Friday through Northern Virginia to honor the victims of the Sept. 11 attacks could complicate the region's afternoon rush hour. The rally is expected to arrive around 2 p.m. Friday in Loudoun County from Maryland. Riders will then take the Dulles Greenway, the Dulles Toll Road and Interstate 66 to Arlington. Police plan to close lanes those roads and I-66 eastbound inside the Capital Beltway to give the motorcyclists a clear ride. (AP)

Insurance Policy Probed in Aruba

Source: Man sought money 2 days after Md. woman vanished

Oranjestad, Aruba

Investigators in Aruba are examining a travel insurance policy and digital photographs linked to a detained Gaithersburg, Md., man and his missing traveling companion, Aruban Solicitor General Taco Stein said in an interview Thursday.

Gary V. Giordano, 50, has been held in Aruba since Aug. 5, as authorities investigate the disappearance of Robyn Gardner, 35, of Frederick County. Giordano no reported that she apparently drowned while snorkeling, authorities have said.

Stein said the photographs were found in a camera that apparently was recovered from a hotel room where the two stayed.

"We surmise it's his camera, but there's not yet a definite point of view on that," Stein said. "And there are explicit pictures on that camera."

The Associated Press, citing an unidentified source, reported that Giordano purchased the $1.5 million American Express Travel Insurance policy shortly before he left for Aruba and that the accidental-death benefit covered only the length of their short trip.

Gardner

Two days after reporting Gardner missing, Giordano sought to claim the money, according to the AP.

Stein said that Gardner and Giordano were last seen together at the Rum Reef Bar & Grill about 4 p.m. on Aug. 2. Giordano, 50, reported her missing shortly after 6 p.m., saying that she hadn't made it to shore after the two had gone snorkeling.

But investigators are boring in on what they say are inconsistencies in Giordano's story and presented those inconsistencies on Monday to a judge, who ordered Giordano detained for another 16 days.

Among the inconsistencies, Stein said, was how Giordano described the sea at the time of the snorkeling.

"He said it was a rough sea and we came to the conclusion that the sea was extremely calm," Stein said, adding that there "were a number of things like that that were contradicting each other. And that's why we presented the case."

McDonnell: Va. Now Has $545M Budget Surplus

Richmond, Va.

Gov. Bob McDonnell says Virginia ended the last fiscal year with a surplus of nearly $545 million.

McDonnell disclosed the new figure Thursday in a speech to the General Assembly's money committees. Last month, the governor said Virginia ended the year with a $311 million surplus. The new figure reflects state agency savings and agency balances that were not reflected in the previous amount.

McDonnell announced that he will allocate $30 million of the surplus to a new reserve fund he's asking the legislature to create to help the state deal with future federal spending cuts. (AP)

THIS TIME, IT'S PERSONNEL

Redskins like what they see from new defensive additions

The Redskins

The numbers don't lie. The Redskins' defense was awful last season.

During their first season in defensive coordinator Jim Haslett's 3-4 scheme, the Redskins allowed 389 yards per game, making them the second-worst defense in the NFL and giving Washington its worst statistical effort in 56 years.

"We weren't happy with it," linebacker Lorenzo Alexander said of the defense's play.

The defensive unit that takes the field Friday night against Indianapolis, however, is brimming with enthusiasm after a solid training camp and an impressive effort

Meet the New D in D.C.

Barry Cofield: The former Giant shifts to nose tackle in the Redskins' 3-4 and made his presence felt with several QB hits last week. "He's exactly what you're looking for," Haslett said.

Jarvis Jenkins: From Day One, the second-round draft pick from Clemson has drawn raves for his work at the defensive end position. "He has the physical ability to be a good pass rusher in this league," Haslett said.

Oshiomogho Atogwe: The jury's still out on the safety, signed from the Rams just before the lockout, because he hasn't practiced or played due to a hamstring injury. If healthy, though, he'll start in Week 1.

7:30 P.M.
Friday | NBC4

in the preseason opener against Pittsburgh. "It's a pretty formidable group," Haslett said.

With the right personnel in key places, a renewed focus on fundamentals and an increased comfort level with the 3-4, Washington's defense is trending up from embarrassment to potential strength.

"We had a whole year to make our mistakes, understand concepts and figure out how we play in it, and I think you can tell the difference," Alexander said.

After allowing teams to move the ball at will last season, the Redskins delivered an eye-opening performance against the Steelers — giving up just 186 yards in a 16-7 win. Granted, Pittsburgh did not play its starters very long, but the progress made by Washington's defense was evident.

The Redskins were ill-suited for the 3-4 last year, but the arrivals of Barry Cofield and Stephen Bowen have given the team a presence on the defensive line that was lacking last year. Rookies Ryan Kerrigan and Jarvis Jenkins have also impressed so far.

Several Redskins players said the biggest factor in their newfound confidence was working through the details of the 3-4 on a daily basis — and forgetting the ghastly numbers from last season.

"I feel like I picked up the X's and O's really quickly [last year]," safety Reed Doughty said. "But the nuances and the techniques of the defense, that's what you really learn in the second year." ELLIOTT SMITH

It's a Knockout: The UFC has made it to network prime-time programming. Mixed martial arts' dominant promotional company announced a landmark seven-year deal with Fox on Thursday, putting four UFC shows on the main network each year and a wide array of programming on its cable networks. The UFC will be prominent on FX, with live fights on most Friday nights and a revamped version of "The Ultimate Fighter," the UFC's popular reality show. (AP)

Nats' Problems Start at the Top

Without a natural leadoff hitter, club's offense is lacking

The Nationals

Nationals manager Davey Johnson approached Danny Espinosa before Wednesday's game to give him a heads up about a change he had in mind. He told the second baseman that he was dropping him down in the batting order, from his customary No. 2 spot all the way to sixth. For a lot of guys, it would seem to be a demotion.

Espinosa's response? "Thanks."

Espinosa has hit 51 points higher this season batting sixth than he has batting second.

As part of his lineup maneuvering, Johnson shifted shortstop Ian Desmond from the bottom of the order back to the leadoff spot, where he began the season unsuccessfully.

One of the Nationals' biggest offensive problems this season has been their failure to put runners on base ahead of sluggers like Ryan

Ian Desmond was moved back to the top spot in the Nats' batting order this week.

.180

Ian Desmond's batting average when batting leadoff this year with the Nationals. Overall, his batting average is .225 in what has been a down offensive season for him. D.T.

Zimmerman and Michael Morse. In a game so heavily influenced by psychology, the team simply has had no one with the right mental and physical approach to thrive at the top of the order.

"My druthers would be to lead off Espi, having Desi hitting two," Johnson said.

But like other Washington managers before him, he's staring down a roster with no natural leadoff hitter, a significant handicap. Desmond, Espinosa, Rick Ankiel, Roger Bernadina and Jerry Hairston Jr., now in Milwaukee, have all tried their hand atop the order.

General manager Mike Rizzo attempted to secure a leadoff man at the trade deadline, with most reports indicating his primary target was Minnesota's Denard Span, but nothing materialized. He'll likely renew his efforts in the offseason, but Johnson is hoping the last six weeks might provide some revelations.

"I think you have to plan on who you know you have," Johnson said. "I mean, you can't plan on something that's not reality. I'm a realist. I'm an optimist-realist. And I'm also confident in human nature, that you can grow into something. But you have to be given the opportunity."

The best leadoff hitter in the organization might be middle infielder Stephen Lombardozzi, who has hit a combined .315 between Class AA Harrisburg and Class AAA Syracuse. His .365 on-base percentage is better than any Washington regular has posted this year. He'll likely get his audition after rosters expand Sept. 1.

But if Lombardozzi is batting leadoff for the Nationals in 2012, it will mean either Desmond or Espinosa is playing elsewhere.

Strasburg Remains Behind Ovechkin

The Alex Ovechkin-Stephen Strasburg debate isn't much of one at all.

The Washington Post's Jason Reid incurred the wrath of Capitals fans recently by daring to say that Strasburg is the city's biggest sports star.

Reid has since seen the light of day, even offering up a version of a mea culpa. And, of course, there is no comparison between the Capitals' superstar and the Nationals' phenom.

Ovechkin, for whatever ills he has as a team leader, owns two MVP trophies and has led the Caps to the best regular-season record in the Eastern Conference for two-straight years. The playoffs are another story, but at least he's playing in the postseason.

Strasburg's starts are bigger events. Strasmas comes but once every five days.

Strasburg, on the other hand, has pitched in the big leagues a whopping two months. Tommy John surgery cut his season short last year before an innings cap could. The former top draft pick's potential is off the charts, which is why each of his rehab starts in the minor leagues is big news, but he has a ways to go to accomplish something substantial.

Where Reid has a point, though, is that Strasburg's starts are bigger events. Strasmas comes but once every five days. And last year's injury took away a whole year's worth of chances to see him in action.

Ovechkin performs exceptionally well for 80-plus games each, making him the better player (for now). But Strasburg is the bigger draw (again, for now).

After Heartbreak, Mids Set the Bar High

Navy Football

There once was a time when Navy would have been delighted with a 9-4 season that ended with a bowl game and included wins over Notre Dame and Army. Under the current standards, however, that just wasn't good enough.

A hard-to-swallow 14-6 loss to Air Force forced the Midshipmen to yield their seven-year stronghold on the Commander-In-Chief's Trophy, a coveted prize that represents superiority among the service academies. "That was like someone ripping your heart out," coach Ken Niumatalolo said. "But you have to put it back in and start breathing again."

Navy coach Ken Niumatalolo is fueled by last year's disappointing loss to Air Force.

Memories of last season have provided the Midshipmen all the incentive they need in 2011. The Mids return 29 of the 34 players listed on the final 2010 offensive depth chart, including eight starters. But Navy lost double-threat quarterback Ricky Dobbs.

He will be replaced by senior Kriss Proctor, who will be directing the run-oriented, triple-option attack that last year ranked sixth in the nation in yards rushing.

It isn't fancy, but the grind-it-out offense — inherited from ex-coach Paul Johnson — has turned around the program. Navy is 70-33 over the last eight years after going 3-30 from 2000-02.

The success of the option depends on the quarterback, and Proctor is ready to do his part. "I'm looking forward to taking over and leading this team," he said. "I think I'm ready, prepared and have the experience and potential to follow in the footsteps of all the QBs that have preceded me." (AP)

QB Terrelle Pryor will be part of the NFL's supplemental draft on Monday.

PRO FOOTBALL

Pryor Eligible for Draft But Will Serve Penalty

Former Ohio State quarterback Terrelle Pryor was declared eligible for Monday's NFL supplemental draft but must sit out the first five games after he signs a contract. The league said on Thursday that Pryor's failure to cooperate with the NCAA and hiring of an agent in violation of NCAA rules led to his suspension. (AP)

MLB Bans First Player For Failing HGH Test

Mike Jacobs is the first player suspended by Major League Baseball for a positive HGH test. The 30-year-old minor league first baseman and former major leaguer received a 50-game suspension Thursday for taking the banned performance-enhancing substance and was subsequently released by the Colorado Rockies. The nearly 2,000 workers renovating Maracana Stadium for the 2014 World Cup Rio de Janeiro went on strike Thursday, citing unsafe conditions and demanding better pay and health care. # Ovie, Capitals Need to Grow Up

It's time for the star to become a captain away from the ice

Commentary

Matt Bradley finally said aloud, on the record, what the Washington Capitals players and coaches have been skirting around for several seasons. He confirmed the whispers, the pointed eye rolls and the general feeling in the Caps' dressing room, that something was lacking. Someone was lacking.

By Tracee Hamilton

Bradley's "someone" is Alexander Semin, a tremendous talent when he feels like it. He just often doesn't feel like it. That's been obvious to anyone who watches the Caps, which is why there were a lot of raised eyebrows in January when the Capitals re-signed him. Why keep him around for another season, and at $6.7 million, if he doesn't want to truly commit?

Of course, Bradley's comments came on the radio in August, after he left the team, not last winter, when he could have said them in the dressing room, where they might have done some good.

Bradley pulled his punches a bit

Alex Ovechkin has pledged to come into training camp in better shape than last year.

"I don't mind saying Alexander Semin's name, because he's one guy who has so much talent, he could easily be the best player in the league, and just for whatever reason, just doesn't care."

— FORMER CAPITAL MATT BRADLEY, ON OTTAWA'S TEAM 1200 RADIO

when discussing the bigger "someone," Alex Ovechkin, praising his on-ice play. That's pretty typical and fair, because Ovechkin plays as hard as anyone in the league. But Bradley also hinted at Ovechkin's conditioning deficiencies. That's been a hot topic among Caps fans for some time. Ovechkin has even tacitly acknowledged the fact by saying he's going to show up at camp in better shape next month.

One way to stay in shape would be to participate in more practices. There is no question that the Caps' stars sit out of a lot of practices.

Ovechkin's not the only one, but he's the one who wears the "C."

While he didn't name any other names, Bradley called the team's dressing room "too nonchalant" and cited a lack of discipline.

The Caps seem to agree: Their entire busy offseason seemed to be devoted to getting more grown-ups, not just in age but in demeanor. But more telling were coach Bruce Boudreau's remarks of a week ago, when he said of Ovechkin, "I think he's a great captain on the ice."

No one ever said of Steve Yzerman or Mark Messier, probably the two best captains in hockey history, that they were great "on the ice." Wearing the "C" is a full-time job, and Ovechkin has been allowed to phone it in for too long.

It's clear that Boudreau expects more of him this season than just 81 hard games, and it's high time someone did. Boudreau said he wants Ovechkin to take his role as team captain "a step further," and he wants to establish "a more serious tone" in the dressing room. He also said, "I fully expect Alex Ovechkin to come back into camp mean as a bear."

If he doesn't, if nothing changes with the Caps on and off the ice this season, Ovechkin won't be the only one feeling mean as a bear. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Miami AD Pledges 'There Will Be a Better Day'

College Football

For the first time, some Miami players are speaking out about the scandal that has rocked the Hurricanes' football program and sparked an NCAA investigation.

"Know this for sure everyone hurts! We all feel pain!" defensive back Brandon McGee posted on his Twitter page at 6:29 a.m. Thursday, about 90 minutes before the Hurricanes took the field for the first of two scheduled practices.

Also ending his silence: Miami athletic director Shawn Eichorst, who promised fans "there will be a better day."

Miami returned to the practice field Thursday with coach Al

Golden saying his team is recovering from the "shock" of the claims former booster Nevin Shapiro made in a Yahoo Sports article this week. Shapiro, now serving 20 years in federal prison for his role in a $930 million Ponzi scheme, said he provided Miami players with cash, prostitutes, cars and other gifts over the past decade. (AP)

BEVERAGES

Bottoms Up

West Virginia University football fans can buy beer at home games for the first time this year, after the school struck a deal with Anheuser-Busch, MillerCoors and Morgantown Brewing Co. to supply the suds at Mountaineer Field. Prices will range from $7 to $9, depending on where the beer was made. (AP)

Afterthoughts: Michael Vick told GQ magazine in its most recent issue that he didn't want to come to Philadelphia to be a third-string quarterback after his release from federal prison two years ago. But commissioner Roger Goodell was among those who convinced him Philadelphia was the right destination. While happy how it ended up, Vick said his top choices were to play for either Cincinnati or Buffalo last year. (AP)

Jason Momoa

ACTOR, ART LOVER, NOT THE GOVERNATOR

With his toned bod and handsome features, Jason Momoa seems all alpha male, but he warns us that it's all acting. "I take out aggression on set. I'm not even king of my own house!" The "Game of Thrones" star plays the title role in the new film "Conan the Barbarian," made popular by the fantasy books and 1982 Arnold Schwarzenegger film by the same name. Momoa claims the action-packed portrayal of the hero, opening today, is an edgier take on the strongman. But this Conan has a soft side, just like Momoa.

This is a breakout role for you. Is "Conan" a career highlight?

I'm a true fan of "Conan," the comic books and the story. When I got the role, it was an honor. I'm truly a fan playing the dream role.

Did you read the books when you were a kid?

I did. I haven't read all of them — there's a lot! But my big thing was both my parents were painters, so I was a really big fan of Frank Frazetta's "Conan" paintings. I love the way he captured his movements.

Does watching the film in 3-D make it a different experience?

I had seen it in 2-D. I wasn't too thrilled about wearing the glasses, but then I saw it, and I was shocked and impressed. For one, it sinks you into this beautiful world. The visual art just sucks you in.

How did you prepare for the role?

I just put myself in the hands of people in charge, and they took over. Like the guys who taught me how to use the sword. Then, I just sank into it. I studied a lot of Samurai films. I went to the zoo to study the lions and panthers. I wanted Conan to move like a cat.

"I went to the zoo to study the lions and panthers. I wanted Conan to move like a cat."

Was it a physical challenge? How much did you work out each day?

Before we started filming, I trained six hours a day. But when we started filming, I tried to get two hours in. Sometimes I could only get one in, but we did stunts all day long, so I was getting cardio. It was just hard to keep the muscle mass on.

Have people been comparing you to Arnold Schwarzenegger?

No, it's impossible to be compared to Arnold. He's Arnold; there's only one. I wouldn't want to be in his shoes even if they said I was. I'm not striving to be him, and I could never take anything away from his Conan. It's like he's Sean Connery and I'm Daniel Craig. Two great but different performances.

Why should women see this film?

There's some powerful female characters in it. And there's a great love story. He's this really strong guy, but we also tried to keep him vulnerable. Conan has this hard shell, but he really takes this woman in his hands and trusts her and loves her. I'm naked in it, too — that's always a plus for women.

You're a father of two young kids. When will you let them watch it?

They'll be, like, 30. It'll be so outdated, they'll say, "Dad, this is 3-D? We're in 6-D now. This is stupid."

MUSTARD SEEDS are only a couple millimeters wide, but, when whipped up, they pack a mighty punch. In the hands of SoNo Trading Company, the pods get blended with worthy friends such as champagne and garlic, or sea salt and habanero peppers. The resulting spreads ($8 each, Sonotrading.com) add flavor to items as varied as sandwiches and chicken breasts. Still, be forewarned that the latter, pepper-packed variety isn't for wusses.

String Theory

FABRIC SCRAPS, YARN and cast-off hardware might seem like candidates for the dustbin to you. But Austin's One Man's Trash (Etsy.com/shop/onemans trash) turns such "junk" into chunky, funky statement jewelry recalling pieces by Marnie or Anthropologie, except at a fraction of the price. Think a ribbon-and-fabric-strip-wrapped choker (shown, $26); bangles woven with copper wire and thread ($18); and tassled, belled necklaces ($39-$49) fit for a latter-day, street-styled Cleopatra.

Lip-Locked

COSMETIC companies' "won't rub off on him" claims are unclear. How much rubbing occurs? Thus, Express conducted an unscientific experiment that went awry. A careless beauty editor tested Smashbox Stain & Color Seal Balm ($23, Sephora.com) on her hand, and hours of uninterrupted rubbing did not take the red mark off. Beware of honest advertising.

To Have and to Hold

AS YOU ATTEND YOUR 907th wedding of 2011, you wonder, "Why did Heather/Bree/Esmeralda blow a condo down payment on that gown/mediocre Spanish champagne/husky-drawn sled?" But BHLN's Pegged Leg Placeholders ($42 for six, Bhlndn.com), though meant to hold name cards for nuptials, will be useful for dinner parties or holding photos long after the "I dos" are over.

Shaped Like Itself

THIS VISUAL PUN — a tape dispenser that looks like a cassette tape ($19.95, Cb2.com) — raises the bar for novelty office supplies. Where's my stapler shaped like a staple?

Thumbtacks that look like severed thumbs? Suggested uses: Tape together print-outs of depressing love songs and give them to a girl/boy you like; pull out all the tape, tangle it up, then futilely try to wind it back into its housing; stare at the thing and ponder the ephemeral nature of media formats.

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

I work on Capitol Hill with a boss, who though brilliant and well-intentioned, likes to yell at the staff. The office is often pretty tense. Of course, I can't quit, because I believe in the work my boss is doing, and I need this job. Please suggest some shoes to make me feel better. — KAREN

Manolo says the Manolo has long noticed that the congresspeoples are like the willful and badly behaved children, who must be disciplined by the adult members of their staff.

"No, Congressman Jimmy, you may not have another gin-and-tonic juice box. You've already had two, and it'll spoil your dinner with the speaker."

"Jimmy want! Jimmy want! Jimmy want!!!"

"No, Congressman. You can have another one when we go to your play-date with the lobbyist from the Sewage and Waste Industry Association."

"Please, Congressman, get up off the floor. Now is not the time for a tantrum! The press will be here soon and you've got to do your homework for the environmental subcommittee."

What is needed is the effective system of remedial correction and education for the immature behavior on the part of our elected officials, something that perhaps involves public humiliation, physical pain and the throwing of ripe fruits and vegetables.

Look! Here is the Luann platform sandal from the Charles David ($230, Zappos.com) in the yellow and beige that would certainly lighten the mood in your office!

THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF CRIME AND PUNISHMENT

Drug Enforcement Agency Museum And Visitors Center

The main exhibit is a sprawling history, not just of illegal drugs and their traffickers, but of the subcultures that made substance abuse cool. The jazz scene, the Beat movement and '80s yuppie scum are all implicated. Also guilty: the medical industry of the late 1800s, when moms quieted babies with opiates and nasty coughs were treated with heroin. Here and there lurk graphic images of dead people, to remind us that drugs are society's greatest evil, even though, yes, it is amusing that someone hid contraband in a fake book titled "Guilt."

Abolitionist and orator Frederick Douglass is an unambiguously admirable figure. He also had excellent taste in home decor, as one can observe on a visit to his Montpelier, despite sounding like Monticello's nerdy kid brother, has a rawness most Founding Father abodes lack. For the neophyte, the NFM is like going to the Library of Congress without the ability to read. Every object is meaningful, but they all look the same. The Reelist*'To Be' or B Movie?

In my previous life as a high school English teacher, I taught "Hamlet." A lot. And I did a pretty good job of it, in that no kids suffered head injuries from passing out due to boredom. But when I saw the Royal Shakespeare Company's latest film version, starring ring David Tennant, I felt like I needed to call up each and every student and apologize for getting it wrong. Tennant's performance turned everything I thought I knew about Hamlet inside out and upside down. I had long been a Tennant fan, but this turned my "Doctor Who" fangirl crush into real respect for him as an actor. And now ... he's in "Fright Night," which opens Friday.

I haven't seen it and probably won't. (I don't really do scary movies, as I have a ridiculous tendency to believe them.) "Fright Night" might be good, and I get very excited when I see the trailer in which Tennant has a line. But part of me wonders why someone with such talent (and probably enough money to at least roll around on a bed of twenties, if not hundreds) would do what looks like a campy horror film. That's not to say popular roles are a step down any more than doing television after establishing a film career is. But I have to wonder whether the man who redefined Hamlet for me found the same challenge playing a vampire hunter.

In the thrilling 'Attack the Block,' an unlikely gang of teens tries to stop an alien invasion

Film Review

Like the big budget, star-heavy "Cowboys & Aliens," the British import "Attack the Block" pits invading extraterrestrials against a breed of earthlings rarely called upon to battle them. Unlike last month's film, though, this one's heroes are not archetypes from a bygone fiction genre; they're nobodies yanked from the streets of a modern city. (The actors playing them are nobodies, too.) Given what it does with its ingredients, the film might as well be called "Attack the Blockbuster."

The title doesn't refer to blockbusters, of course, but to housing blocks, the depressing and dangerous apartment projects where England's poor live. For mysterious reasons, aliens have chosen to attack a single South London complex, the fast, furry beasts singling out five young thugs who would otherwise be preying on innocent humans.

The movie's panache and energy were undeniable when it screened for critics several weeks ago. At the time, its undercurrent of class-consciousness was simply that — a subtle theme with many precedents.

But seen again, days after riots overtook London, the movie looks prescient, maybe even important. In its own, unpreachy way, the film condemns society's two main ways of dealing with the discontented poor: policing them into submission and pretending they don't exist.

Take the way it opens. We watch as a nurse, walking home from work, is surrounded by five men in hoodies. A knife comes out; threats are made. Just as we fear robbery

Attack the Block (R)

► Director: Joe Cornish

► Stars: John Boyega, Jodie Whittaker, Alex Esmail

► In a Nutshell: A teen gang in South London defends its block from an alien invasion.

might become assault, a meteorite slams into a nearby car.

Sci-fi movies have taught us to expect the quick evisceration of these criminals once we realize this meteorite carries an angry alien to Earth. When it doesn't happen immediately, we keep expecting it — waiting for other monsters to eliminate the gang until we realize that we're stuck with these undesirables for the rest of the movie.

Writer/director Joe Cornish is too mature to excuse the teens' lawless ways or suggest we shouldn't condemn them; he simply forces us to view them as people instead of narrative objects.

But no monster movie endures because of its political allegory or socioeconomic savvy. "Attack the Block" demands to be seen simply because it is a thrill — a pulse-raiser whose perfect construction and pointed wit make it one of the year's most exciting films.

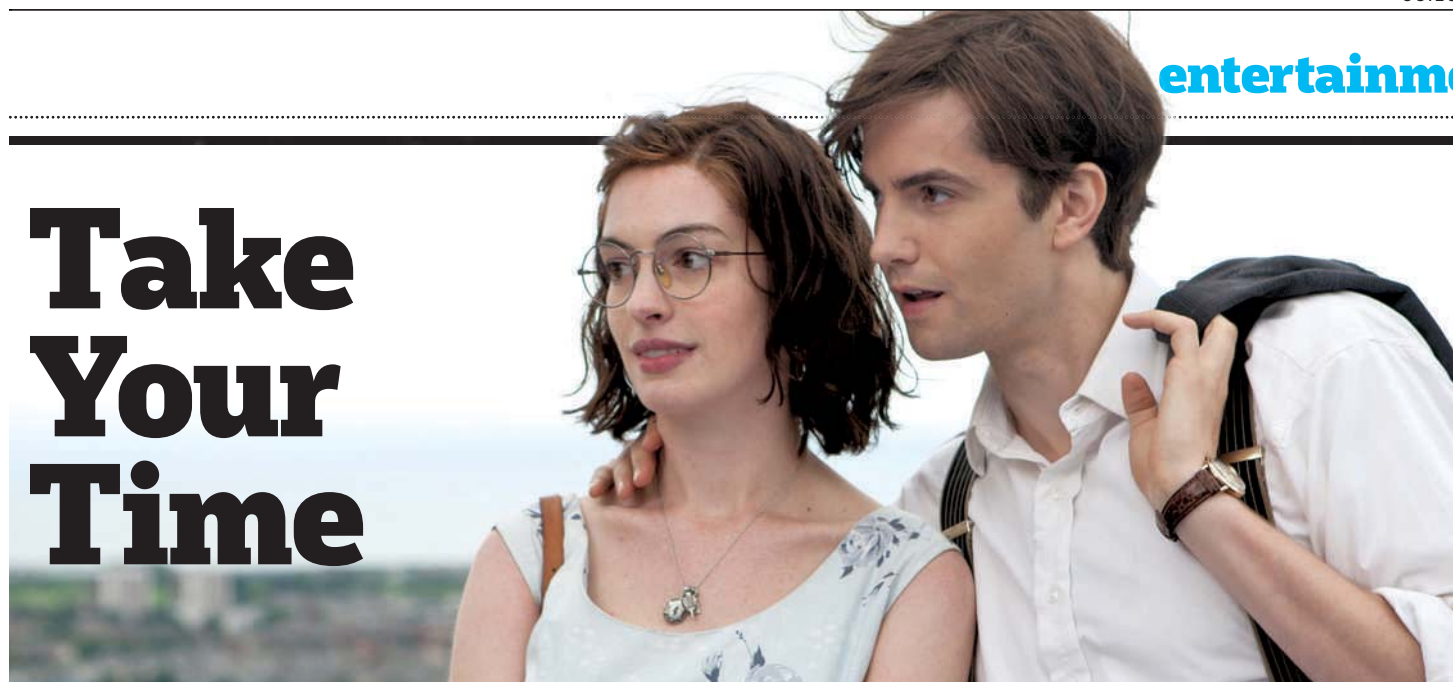

JOHN DEFORE (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Back to the Future: Ridley Scott, shown, is planning to direct another "Blade Runner" movie, a film that would be a continuation of the 1982 sci-fi classic in which Harrison Ford hunted down replicants, according to Deadline.com. At this point, though, it's not clear whether the new film will be a prequel or a sequel. (TWP)

A relationship is seen via yearly snapshots in this new adaptation

Film Review

Need a good cry? Go see "Senna"!

Have a few tears left? You might want to check out "One Day," Lone Scherfig's attractive, if tepid tear-jerker about fate, friendship, love and loss.

Oy, the loss. Anyone who's read the book will be prepared for the radical turn "One Day" takes; those who haven't may want to brace themselves. But even before "One Day" whops viewers over the head with its third-act stunner, it's suffused with the theme of loss, mostly as it relates to those opportunities we let slip through our otherwise occupied fingers.

The star-crossed couple at the center of this familiar object lesson are Emma and Dexter, whose college graduation-night hook-up on July 15, 1988, ends in a platonic cuddle amid vows always to stay friends. "One Day," which screenwriter David Nicholls adapted from his own novel, then traces the erstwhile couple's friendship in snapshots captured on succeeding July 15ths, tracing their lives and careers

One Day (PG-13)

- In a Nutshell: After spending the night together after their college graduation, Dexter and Emma are shown each year on the same date to see where they are in their lives.

ing friends-who-should-be-lovers couple, a la Harry and Sally.

The conceit of "One Day" — that we see the couple only one day a year, leaving it to them to reveal what's happened over the past 12 months — works better on the page than the screen, especially when a pivotal encounter occurs off stage. But Nicholls has proved a faithful shepherd to his fictional creations, who banter and rant at each other with the practiced elan of the aging couple they're clearly meant to be.

ANN HORNADAY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Colin Farrell steals the show as a suburban bloodsucker in "Fright Night."

'Fright Night': Now With Bite

Film Review

"Fright Night" stands apart from the rehash pack by accomplishing something rival remakes rarely do: It improves on the premise it has been handed, producing a modernized version of a decades-old story that's superior to its predecessor in virtually every aspect.

In this case, "Fright Night" director Craig Gillespie remakes Todd Holland's 1985 horror comedy of the same name, a dated slice of teenage paranoia that was neither scary nor funny the first time.

The story still steals from Alfred Hitchcock's masterpiece "Rear Window" with awkward teenager Charlie Brewster (Anton Yelchin) casting suspicions that his mysterious new neighbor Jerry (Colin Farrell) is a vampire. As Charlie's accusations fall on deaf ears, the arrogant Jerry engages in a deadly cat-and-mouse game that draws in Charlie's childhood friend (Christopher Mintz-Plasse), his girlfriend (Imogene Poots), and a carnival-barking entertainer named Peter Vincent (David Tennant) who trades in the occult.

At its best, "Fright Night" mixes sly pop-culture references, "Twilight" jabs and Scooby gang jokes with suspenseful horror sequences sure to unnerve even the most-seasoned genre fans. Though Gillespie staked his claim with the offbeat "Lars and the Real Girl," he deftly maneuvers this film's action sequences, the most memorable involving a minivan, a motorbike, a demonic hand and a real estate sign with a sharp point on the end.

All of this, however, takes a backseat to Farrell, who appears to be having a ball as Jerry, the bored bloodsucker. Like a fat cat batting around an injured mouse, Farrell plays off his innate sexuality and unforced charm to intimidate co-stars who appear less confident. Which, in a word, is everyone.

'Senna: The Ride Of a Life

Film Review

"Senna" is what film critics might call a TMSI movie, as in: Trust me, see it.

And some viewers will have to go on trust, because on paper, they may not consider a documentary about Formula One auto racing their particular cup of tea. But "Senna" succeeds precisely because it doesn't focus on racing per se, instead profiling Formula One driver Ayrton Senna da Silva, three-time world champion, Brazilian national hero and altogether superb young man whose promise was extinguished far too early when he died on the track in 1994 at age 34.

Another reason "Senna" works is that director Asif Kapadia eschews the usual childhood scenes that have become a hallmark of biographical documentaries. Instead, he plunges viewers directly into the white-knuckle action of high-test auto racing, giving them a taste of its adrenaline and appeal with jittery driver's-eye-view footage.

"Senna" may not be a rags-to-riches story, but it nonetheless celebrates resolve, hard work, integrity and guts. Expertly crafted and urgently paced, "Senna" has everything a major motion picture needs to win over audiences: riveting action, heartbreaking drama and a protagonist everyone can root for. A.H.

30 MINUTES OR LESS (R, 83 minutes)

Jesse Eisenberg plays Nick, a pizza delivery guy who falls into a trap set by spoiled brat Dwayne (Danny McBride) to steal $100,000 to pay off a hit man to assassinate Dwayne's rich father. With a bomb strapped to his chest and only a few hours to find the money, Nick and his best friend, Chet (Aziz Ansari), cut a manic, destructive swath through Grand Rapids, Mich., surviving a ballistic bank robbery and pulverizing car crash and ongoing patter about sex, action flicks and sex. Like "Horrible Bosses," "The Change-Up" and "The Hangover Part II," "30 Minutes or Less" plays like this summer's latest — and lamest — panegyric to male friendship. A.H.

CAPTAIN AMERICA: FIRST AVENGER (PG-13, 125 minutes) The ultimate origin story of the original myth of Marvel Comics' seemingly endless comic-book universe, the World War II-era drama returns to its classic roots with the square-jawed forthrightness of its straight-arrow protagonist. Even his name exudes an America that time forgot: Steve Rogers. "I don't like bullies," Rogers (Chris Evans) says simply before joining the U.S. Army in 1942. Director Joe Johnston has surrounded Evans with a wonderful cast of supporting players, including Stanley Tucci as the German doctor who turns Rogers from puny to magnificent; Hayley Atwell as a comely British military liaison named Peggy Carter; and the scene-stealing Tommy Lee Jones, who nails the movie's most amusing lines as the crusty Col. Chester Phillips. A.H.

THE CHANGE-UP (R, 113 minutes) "Freaky Friday" meets "The Hangover" in "The Change-Up," a raunchy ode to guy-love in which Jason Bateman and Ryan Reynolds struggle valiantly to transcend the movie they're in. As an arrested adolescent and incorrigible ladies' man named Mitch, Reynolds has most of the funniest lines in "The Change-Up," many of them vulgarities aimed at infants who smile beatifically at the verbal abuse. Bateman doesn't get to have nearly as much fun as Mitch's straight-laced bestie Dave, a type-A lawyer with a beautiful wife (Leslie Mann) and three kids. For the most part, he's called on to turn on his signature nervous grimace. Mitch and Dave switch bodies early on and must impersonate each other until they can switch back. A.H.

COWBOYS & ALIENS (PG-13, 118 minutes) Jon Favreau's celebration of two of cinema's most revered genres doesn't stint in lavishing their most cherished conventions with evenhanded affection and respect. Daniel Craig plays Jake Lonergan, who as the movie opens wakes up alone in the desert with a mysterious injury and a heavy metal bracelet around his wrist. When he rides into nearby Absolution, he immediately makes his presence felt, swatting down a bully named Percy Dolarhyde (Paul Dano), whose father, Woodrow (Harrison Ford), owns a huge cattle ranch nearby. When strange lights appear in the sky and some of the townsfolk are sucked into hovering vehicles overhead, the taciturn Lonergan and the crustily misanthropic Woodrow Dolarhyde join forces to track down the interstellar outlaws and bring their people home. A.H.

CRAZY, STUPID, LOVE (PG-13, 118 minutes) "Crazy, Stupid, Love" opens with a clever montage of couples' feet engaging in all manner of furtive flirtation under restaurant tables. When the camera lands on Cal Weaver (Steve Carell) and his wife, Emily (Julianne Moore), their troubles are clear. She's wearing come-hither heels while Cal is decked out in schlumpy New Balance sneakers. She's still trying, but Cal has given up, which accounts for why Emily announces at that same restaurant that she wants a divorce. He numbly agrees, moves out of their comfortable house and into a depressing bachelor pad and begins hitting a singles bar, where he comes under the tutelage of serial seducer Jacob Palmer (Ryan Gosling), a playah Pygmalion who takes Cal on as a personal makeover project. What ensues is the kind of smooth, fitfully funny, finely machined romantic comedy that is expertly calibrated to hit all the rom-com happy places. A.H.

FINAL DESTINATION 5 (R, 92 minutes) Nothing in life is certain but death and sequels. Make that sequels about death — teen-oriented exploitation movies in which generic young actors meet their fates in a series of gruesome, occasionally suspenseful scenes. The latest of these, "Final Destination 5," isn't as novel as it hopes to be, but it gets the job done. Here, the villain is fate itself, a sense that the entire physical world is loaded with inevitable death for those who somehow evade the Reaper the first time he comes calling. The camera in "FD5" treats inanimate objects—mal-functioning air conditioners, say—as killers whose mindlessness only makes them more unstoppable. While viewers will get plenty of nervous giggles out of watching as burping water-coolers or (yes!) inappropriately ringing cell phones trigger fatal mishaps, the filmmakers don't milk the this-leads-to-that element that made Rube Goldberg famous. Once the initial trigger happens, there's not a lot of fun left in the scene. JOHN DEFORE

FRIENDS WITH BENEFITS (R, 108 minutes) Mila Kunis and Justin Timberlake fairly set the screen on fire as cynics who agree to use each other for physical gratification but otherwise remain steadfastly un-love-struck. Kunis' character is hard-driving media headhunter named Jamie, a savvy consumer of romantic comedy clichés, who is nonetheless powerless to resist their happily-ever-after promises.

After Jamie persuades Timberlake's Dylan to move to New York to become art director at GQ, the two become best buds, deciding one drunken evening to step up their game. Kunis possesses particular zing as a tart, unsentimental romantic heroine. But if Kunis gets the showier role, Timberlake proves a quietly charming stalking horse, finally claiming and fully owning the spotlight with a hilarious homage to the 1990s rap duo Kriss Kross. A.H. GLEE: THE 3D CONCERT MOVIE (PG, 100 minutes) "Glee: The 3D Concert Movie" is a multi-dimensional "Glee"-a-thon that contains highlights from a at New Jersey's Meadowlands during this summer's "Glee" tour. Filled with infectious energetic renditions of pop tunes plucked straight from the repertoires of the show's competitive crooning groups, the New Directions and the Warblers — from Journey's "Don't Stop Believin'" to Pink's "Raise Your Glass" — the movie is entertaining and, admittedly, completely unnecessary. Hard-core "Glee" fans will undoubtedly give it two thumbs up, as it delivers the key things they desire from a "Glee" movie: a chance to watch their favorite cast members (Kurt! Santana! Brittany!) perform "Born This Way" on a much larger screen, and to get even closer to this season's breakout heart-throb, Darren Criss, courtesy of 3-D technology. JEN CHANEY

THE HELP (PG-13, 137 minutes) Fans of Kathryn Stockett's folksy, ingratiating novel of the same name can rest easy: The director, Tate Taylor — a childhood friend of the author, who, like her, grew up in Jackson, Miss., where the story is set — has preserved the book's story line, characters and confiding tone with loyalty worthy of any best friend. Readers who felt they came to intimately know characters such as Celia (Jessica Chastain) and Skeeter (Emma Stone) are likely to greet their alter egos on screen like cherished, long-lost friends — especially the nobly suffering Aibileen, here brought to quietly watchful life by Viola

Andy Serkis plays chimp leader Caesar in "Rise of the Planet of the Apes."

Davis. Skeeter gets a job as a newspaper cleaning-advice columnist, but when she asks Aibileen for some tips, she realizes that the real story lies in the emotional lives of black women who virtually raise their white employers' children, but who are treated by those same families as unfit to share a kitchen utensil, much less political or economic power. A.H.

RISE OF THE PLANET OF THE APES (PG-13, 110 minutes) First, the good news. "Rise of the Planet of the Apes," the much-anticipated prequel to the sci-fi movie franchise of the late '60s and early '70s about a world ruled by apes, gets one thing exactly right. The apes, which we see on the cusp of world domination, are both terrifying and sympathetic. That's not an easy trick. Yet it's critical to this origin story, which charts the ascent of a hyper-intelligent chimp named Caesar (Andy Serkis, in motion-capture CGI) to the role of leader of an ape underground, after suffering abuse at the hands of a sadistic handler at a primate shelter (Tom Felton). Caesar and his simian followers are both relatable and scary as heck. Now for the bad news. The filmmakers seem to have spent so much attention and, presumably, money on getting the primates right that they completely forgot about the people. Led by a mumble-mouthed James Franco the cast of human actors is uniformly weak. M.O.

THE SMURFS (PG, 102 minutes) Raja Gosnell relies on cutting-edge CGI and unnecessary 3-D wizardry to transport the pint-size heroes of the '80s to noisy New York City. Once here, the Smurfs interact with incredulous humans, impart a little homespun wisdom and help make our grungy existence a tad more animated. A paper-thin plot finds six Smurfs sucked through a magical vortex and dropped into Central Park. Hot on the Smurfs' blue trail is evil sorcerer Gargamel (Hank Azaria) and his feisty cat, Azrael. Luckily, the Smurfs take shelter with gentle Grace ("Glee" star Jayma Mays) and her workaholic husband, Patrick (Neil Patrick Harris), who both need to be reminded that life moves pretty fast, and if you don't stop to smurf the roses every now and again, you just might miss the special moments. SEAN O'CONNELL

2 Leave Your Fear At the Door

From 1989 to 1996, HBO's "Tales From the Crypt" meted out graphically violent justice to the greedy and prideful. In what is surely a shrewd comment on the debt ceiling debate, the Black Cat has pledged to screen two episodes of the series every Friday. The first-ever episode, "The Man Who Was Death," tackles unemployment (an executioner goes freelance after the death penalty is abolished). There will be drink specials with which to wash down the dramatic irony. Black Cat, 1811 14th St. NW; Fridays starting Aug. 19, 7 p.m.-8:30 p.m.; 202-667-4490, Blackcatdc.com. (USt.-Cardozo)

Quick tutorial for non-soccer fans (hi, Americans!): "The Beautiful Game" is what everyone else calls soccer. It's also the name of an Andrew Lloyd Webber musical about Irish soccer hooligans, and as much as we'd like to see people singing while playing dance-soccer, it's probably for the best that the screening of "The Beautiful Game" at the National Museum of African Art this weekend is just a 2011 documentary with the same title. But also about soccer. National Museum of African Art, 950 Independence Ave. SW; Sat., 1 p.m., free; 202-633-4600, Africa.si.edu. (Smithsonian)

Animal Planet debuts a new show with only loose ties to creatures

Premieres

FRI 9:00 News flash: There's a reality show on Animal Planet that has nothing to do with animals. Or nearly nothing.

Time was, Animal Planet could create a reality show starring only animals. "Meerkat Manor" took the people-free soap opera idea to its logical limit. Now, with "Tanked" (9 p.m. and 10 p.m.), Animal Planet goes in the opposite direction. While it's supposed to be about big and big-hearted blue-collar guys who build exotic aquariums for Las Vegas casinos and wealthy residents, it's really about New Yorkers stranded in America's gambling mecca.

Brett Raymer and Wayne King are brothers-in-law and partners in Acrylic Tank Manufacturing (ATM), one of the country's leading and most successful builders of aquariums.

As in every show since "Monster Garage," this series involves the practical jokes and hijinks of two goofy guys and their family and employees as they confabulate something wild and artistic before our eyes. They even have an assistant named "Redneck" who lives in a trailer on the premises.

In the first episode, ATM creates a mobster-themed aquarium for a Las Vegas casino and a New York City-scape decoration for some local residents, complete with an aquarium built into an old-fashioned phone booth.

Viewers of "Tanked" may leave the show with an enhanced appreciation of acrylic, but they won't learn terribly much about tropical fish. KEVIN McDONOUGH (UNIVERSAL UCLICK)

Best Bets

FRI 10:00

Strike Back (MAX) As Scott and Stonebridge (Philip Winchester, right) search for a scientist with information about missing weapons of mass destruction, they discover the terrorists doing the same, which means Latif's plot could be much bigger than they thought.

SUN 9:00

Drop Dead Diva (LIFE) Jane represents their former sorority housemother, who wants to prove that a casino's drunken environment caused her to lose her savings. Parker and Kim represent a woman who's fighting a museum's demand for a rare plant she cultivated.

SUN 10:00

My Collection Obsession (TLC) In this new special, viewers meet shoe fanatic Darlene; Kyle, who collects vacuum cleaners; and Marilyn, who treats her doll collection like real children.

SUN 10:00

Curb Your Enthusiasm (HBO) Team Larry or Team Rosie? You decide which one to root for when Larry competes with Rosie O'Donnell for a woman's attention. This new episode also finds him trying to understand the etiquette of bowing among the Japanese and refusing lunch with a Los Angeles acquaintance. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

Behind the Music

Reigning Kings Of Arena Rock

When three teen brothers and their cousin rebelled against their religious Southern upbringing to form a rock band named Kings of Leon, their humble backstory garnered almost as much attention as their music. In the documentary "Talihina Sky: The Story of Kings of Leon" (Sun., 10 p.m., SHO), director Stephen C. Mitchell charts the rockers' (including Caleb Followill, above) journey to the top. (TM)

Horoscope

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may discover that you're not quite as prepared to launch into the new phase of a project as you had thought, but you can fake it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Any attempt to outperform or overshadow another is likely to backfire on you. Be sure that your motives are pure at all times.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You must find a way to keep your schedule straight at this time, as things are likely to heat up and you'll be much busier than usual.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You will be able to increase enjoyment and profit, if you take advantage of an opportunity that few others will even notice.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Things may not progress in a way that makes sense to you, but if you approach them one at a time, you should fare quite well.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You've reached the halfway point, and it's time to look back and assess your own performance. Be honest; don't deceive yourself in any way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're trying to do something others have been unable to do, and though you're nearing the finish line, a difficulty may arise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may have a hard time reading someone else, but once you begin interacting directly, the mystery should evaporate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's time to send a full and accurate report of your experiences to someone who was unable to join you. Convey a sense of excitement.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may have to make one or two personal adjustments when you figure out how someone else likes to work. This compromise is easy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have the opportunity to show those around you that it's not all bluster, but in fact you do indeed know very much what you're doing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The more you try to keep to yourself, the more likely it is that others will try to ferret you out. Try being just a little social.

Samurai Sudoku

DIFFICULT

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

VOWS

For Richer, for Poorer,
In Good Tans and in Bad

"Project Runway" judge Michael Kors wed his partner, Lance Le Pere, Tuesday on New York's Dune Beach. "To marry someone as wonderful and special to me as Lance barefoot on a glorious beach is more than I could have dreamed of," the 51-year-old designer told Women's Wear Daily. The couple met in 1990, when Le Pere was interning at Kors' design company. (EXPRESS)

Sing in Movie Adaptation

Lara Lundstrum Clarke believes a chance encounter with Gwyneth Paltrow saved her life on Sept. 11, 2011, according to People. Clarke was rushing to work at the World Trade Center when she jaywalked, nearly colliding with a car Paltrow was driving. Clarke ended up late to work, moments after the first plane hit the WTC. Comedy Central's Sept. 19 roast of Charlie Sheen may feature some "surprising people" skewering the actor, roast master general Jeff Ross told Entertainment Weekly. "We have to find out how Charlie Sheen went from TV's highest-paid actor to the highest actor on TV," he added. (EXPRESS)

ACCEPTANCE

'One of Us! One of Us!'

After Abercrombie & Fitch offered to pay Mike "The Situation" Sorrentino to stop wearing its clothing, Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt made his own offer to the "Jersey Shore" star. According to TMZ, Flynt released a statement saying that the company would happily "pay Mr. Sorrentino to wear their clothing so that he can stay well dressed. The Sith may not be good enough for Abercrombie & Fitch, but he's good enough for us." (EXPRESS)

BRIDEZILLAS

Guest Must Also Bow
Before Bride and Groom

The Huffington Post reports that guests planning to attend the wedding of Kim Kardashian and Kris Humphries this weekend have been instructed to come to the swanky affair dressed in black or white, with no exceptions allowed. The intel is attributed to "Today Show" host Kathie Lee Gifford, and an unidentified "insider" and "friend of the family." (EXPRESS)
